HOW HEALTHY IS YOUR INTERNET?

Think of broadband labels as the nutrition labels of your internet service. The Federal Communications Commission now requires all Internet Service Providers give consumers clear, easy-to-understand and accurate information about the cost and performance of high-speed internet services.

Broadband labels are modeled after the Food and Drug Administration's nutrition labels, which help consumers make informed decisions about the food they buy and eat. Similarly, broadband labels are designed to help consumers make smart internet choices.

BATTERY BACKUP

Your home phone and/or internet service is provided with WK&T's fiber optic network and requires electric power to operate. To avoid disruption of home voice service during a power outage—and to maintain the ability to connect to 911 emergency services—an eight-hour battery backup is provided to you at no charge. If you do not have landline service, WK&T makes a battery backup power supply available for purchase.

Backup batteries are expected to last up to eight hours on standby power. This means the backup battery should give you approximately six hours of voice service. If you feel that is not enough time, you may extend your standby battery by purchasing additional batteries to supply backup power for as long as 24 hours. Please call WK&T's customer service for more information. Note: Although the battery backup can support WK&T internet and/or video services for a short time, the backup is intended to support voice services only.
