

2026 Cardinals Season Schedule

We want to make you aware of an upcoming change in how St. Louis Cardinals games will be televised beginning with the 2026 MLB season.

Major League Baseball has announced a new distribution model for Cardinals broadcasts. As part of this shift, the Cardinals are launching Cardinals.TV, which will become the team's new home for local broadcasts and streaming.

Because WK&T TV currently carries FanDuel TV—and FanDuel has lost the Cardinals broadcast rights—local Cardinals games will no longer be available on FanDuel TV.

How You'll Be Able to Watch Cardinals Games Going Forward

Under MLB's new arrangement:

- MLB will produce and distribute all locally televised Cardinals games.
- Fans can continue watching through traditional cable and satellite providers that carry the new MLB-managed broadcasts.
- Fans will also have the option to stream every local Cardinals game directly through Cardinals.TV via the MLB App or MLB.com.

What This Means for WK&T TV Members

WK&T will continue to carry all channels currently included in your package; however, Cardinals games will transition away from FanDuel TV due to MLB's new rights agreement. WK&T is actively exploring new ways to bring Cardinals' content back to our members, though nothing is certain yet.

We want you to have the most accurate information so you can plan for the 2026 season.

Thank you for being part of the WK&T community. We remain committed to keeping you informed and delivering the best viewing experience possible.
